

INTO THE LIGHT: TURNER AS VISIONARY

Turner had an extraordinary imagination, conjuring up epic tales from the past, grappling with contemporary social ills in early Victorian Britain whilst also being committed to the march of progress in industry. He looked to the ancient past, present and future embracing all these aspects in his paintings. But he increasingly looked into the light, as the source of energy and comfort -sunssets/sunrises dominate more and more in his seascapes offering visual excitement as well as philosophical commentaries on the world and volatile Nature around us.

The sessions will bring together some great works such as The Fighting Temeraire of 1839 and Rail, Steam and Speed of 1844. We shall follow Turner's fascination with atmosphere and weather, whereby the landscape increasingly is not seen for itself but as a commentary upon the human condition, a speculation on the tension between order and disorder.

CALL is a 'not for profit' independent group interested in promoting lifelong learning in Cambridgeshire.
